who work profitably, soon learn to increase the necessities and to desire luxuries. India is becoming active, laborious, and prosperous. She begins to call for European products, and the English merchant is carrying to India his manufactured cotton goods in payment for the raw cotton.

play upon it. Cossyrev had tried all his models, after another; he had come to the last of them, all in vain. In the morning when he rose, and in evening when he retired to rest, but more especially during his meals, and in the presence of his Marianne—who was thinking of something else—yearly basis from the foregoing statement it will be seen that there has been a considerable increase of last year. The return for 1860 (Southland included) was four hundred and thirty-nine thousand nine hundred and eighteen (439,918). In 1861, for the same period, the return was 523,120, or 83,202 more (one hundred and eighty-six thousand six hundred and twenty-six (523,120). Add to the above fifty-five per cent. of lambs under three months old (not returnable) and there is very nearly a million more sheep in the colony than there were three years ago; and, from the splendid season that has been, the average will be very much higher than we have had for the last few years. It is almost incredible to think that there is any danger of the sheep being overstocked by the settlers. The immense quantity of grass there is this spring is actually waiting for want of animals to use it. It will be better than any season we have had, stronger and better than last year, also free from the fault that was found with it. The contemplated importations of sheep are very large; in fact, I am aware that the Government intend to import 100,000 for; and I have not the slightest doubt that there will be upwards of a hundred thousand taken into the province the ensuing year. I am disappointed at the small number of sheep that will come from the West, and I have little chance of doing so. The importations from Victoria cease. But if the settlers would erect dip at their stations, and carefully dress the wool, they could sell their sheep as well as those that happen to travel; and they could sell these at a great advantage in cradling disease from the Province."

Adverting to the squating interest in Otago, the Zealandian says of those of our Victorian readers, to whom the very name of squatter is new, the information may be acceptable, that the run-holders in Otago hold their runs on a very different basis from those of the squatters of the state colony. They have no ambiguous ill-defined claims under the uncertain authority of Orders in Council on which to found exaggerated claims. They hold their runs on a lease, exceeding in no case four years, and subject to a very liberal condition, that in the event of the land being required for occupation it can be declared to be surplusage and sold, at once, to the Government, at a handsome price.

of the mines. In the latter case compensation from the revenue of the gold-fields is to be made to the Crown. From the fact that suspension of the lease is not sustained, it appears that there are 168 runs under lease, comprising an area of 10,312 square miles, or 6,999,870 acres. The average percentage of the leases is ten years or more; some will fall in six years, others have as much as twenty years before they expire. The largest run is 108,820 acres; there are several of 100,000; the smallest is 3200 acres. The license fees range from 10s. to 100s. per annum, and the tenure of the squatters or runholders in Otago is derived from that of their confreres in Victoria, but it by no means follows that they may not fall in the same amount of adium. The unpopularity which has been covering Victoria labour under is due to more than one cause. We have already alluded to the excessive fees they make under the Orders in Council, to which they are entitled, but it is to be added the disposition they evinced to monopolise the land, not by fair purchase but by buying and bullying off competition and the arrogant spirit of some of them. It is to be regretted that they put forth to social superiority over other colonists.

The reverse at the port of Dunedin, for the quarter ended 31st December, 1891, amounted to £239,312 17s. 4d., against £221,219s. for the corresponding quarter of 1890.

An inquiry is now taking place into the sanity of Sir G. W. Windham, of Felsberg-hall, Norfolk. The proceedings are being conducted by the Hon. Sir J. L. Knight Bruce and the Right Hon. Sir G. T. Turner, originated in a petition signed by Major-General Charles Ashe Windham, of Felsberg-hall, Norfolk, the Marquis of Helton, Lord Alfred Hervey, M.P., Lord Listowel, and others, praying that a writ of habeas corpus might issue against young Mr. Windham. The inquiry was held before the Lord Justices on 11th November, at the Court of the Lords Justices in Lincoln's-inn. The Lords Justices, after hearing the evidence on either side, considered that a prima facie case was made out against Sir G. W. Windham, and
